a lively waltz. Every one present knew that the Rev. Mr. Messler is but terly opposed to dancing, and believes it an invention of the devil, but the music was irresistible and soon several of the young men and girls were whir:

ing about the rooms.

Most of the old tolks present did rot know a waltz from a hornpipe, but they did know that it was dancing, and some with horrified looks left the house and hastened homeward. Pastor Messler was amazed, but apparently charmed with the music, for he failed to say anything, and soon several of the staid old deacons were "stretching their legs a little," as they put in. They regret it now, for they have had to face a different kind of music made by the scandalized portion of the flock. There is great uneasiness among certain church officers and they have feelings to more than the following the following the following the following following the following following the following following following the following fo of uncertainty about the approaching
